American Politics (Assistant Professor)

The Department of Political Science at Indiana University Bloomington invites applications for one full-time tenure-track professor in the field of American Politics, beginning August of 2013. Our goal is to hire the strongest candidate available in political institutions, political behavior, or public policy. This position is at the rank of assistant professor.

Candidates should demonstrate broad theoretical interests, active research agendas with the promise of publication in high-quality venues, strong teaching credentials, and proficiency in appropriate research methods. In addition to maintaining an ongoing research program, the holder of this position is expected to teach courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and to participate in departmental activities.

Indiana University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer and has a strong institutional commitment to the principle of diversity in all areas. We encourage applications from a broad spectrum of scholars, including women, members of racial and ethnic minorities, and disabled individuals. To ensure full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 15, 2012; however, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Applicants should submit a letter of application; curriculum vitae; copies of publications, papers, course syllabi and evaluations; and have at least three letters of recommendation forwarded to us. All application materials should be sent to: American Politics Search, Russell L. Hanson, Department Chair, Indiana University Department of Political Science, Woodburn Hall 210, 1100 East Seventh Street, Bloomington, Indiana 47405-7110; Fax: (812) 855-2027. Please address questions to Jessica Williams at (812) 855-1209; e-mail: jeewilli@indiana.edu

International Relations (Assistant Professor)

The Department of Political Science at Indiana University Bloomington invites applications for one full-time tenure-track professor in the field of International Relations, beginning August of 2013. Our first priority is International Political Economy, but we encourage applications from other subfields, as our goal is to hire the strongest candidate available. This position is at the rank of assistant professor.

Candidates should demonstrate broad theoretical interests, active research agendas with the promise of publication in high-quality venues, strong teaching credentials, and proficiency in appropriate research methods. In addition to maintaining an ongoing research program, holders of these positions are expected to teach courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and to participate in departmental activities.

Indiana University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer and has a strong institutional commitment to the principle of diversity in all areas. We encourage applications from a broad spectrum of scholars, including women, members of racial and ethnic minorities, and disabled individuals. To ensure full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 15, 2012; however, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Applicants should submit a letter of application; curriculum vitae; copies of publications, papers, course syllabi and evaluations; and have at least three letters of recommendation forwarded to us. All application materials should be sent to: International Relations Search, Russell L. Hanson, Department Chair, Indiana University Department of Political Science, Woodburn Hall 210, 1100 East Seventh Street, Bloomington, Indiana 47405-7110; Fax: (812) 855-2027. Please address questions to Jessica Williams at (812) 855-1209; e-mail: jeewilli@indiana.edu