

POLS-P302

MW 1:00-2:15pm

WH 121

The Politics of Economic Crisis and Reform

Professor Winecoff

Economic crises have been a recurrent feature of global capitalism since its beginning. These crises have significant effects on economic and political systems, and contemporary instability has hurt countries on every continent. This course will consider the politics of crisis and reform from a political economy perspective. In addition to learning general theories of crisis and reform, we will study important crisis episodes and the impact of various crisis responses.